

From the President

Debi West

As we step into a new season together, I want to take a moment to express my deep gratitude for our growing RAEA membership. Your commitment to art education and mentorship continues to inspire me daily, and it's exciting to see how each of you is making an impact in your states and communities.

I'd love to hear more about how your state organizations are utilizing their RAEA members. What creative programs or initiatives are you launching to mentor and support art educators? Please share your ideas as we want to highlight and learn from one another!

Here in Georgia, where I serve as the RAEA Director, we launched a new initiative this year called MMM, Monthly Mentor Minutes. Each month, I reach out to an active RAEA member and invite them to share tips, tricks, stories, or ideas, anything that will inspire and encourage our members. These contributions are about a page long and it's a one-time commitment, but the impact has been powerful. The response has been wonderful, and the shared wisdom has truly energized our community.

Looking ahead, I'm considering bringing this program to the national level in 2026, and I'd love to start gathering MMM contributions earlier rather than later. Here's a question for you: Should we have specific themes each month, or simply invite inspiring words from our seasoned, outstanding professionals who want to mentor teachers in the field? I'd love your thoughts!

And speaking of inspiration, a huge shout-out to Linda Fisher, who has done an amazing job reorganizing and promoting our Student Chapter Award. If you're a higher ed educator with an outstanding preservice student chapter, encourage your students to apply! There's a monetary award and national recognition involved, so be sure to read Linda's article below for all the details.

Our RAEA Board of 14 met in early October, and we have some exciting plans to share with you this spring in Chicago. Stay tuned!

Remember, our mission is to mentor and share. Don't be shy—reach out to me and share your magic. Together, we can continue to grow, advocate for art education, and support the teachers in the field who need us most.

During this season of thanks, please know that I am deeply thankful to you all!

So Sincerely,

Debi West

January 2023

Happy New Year! The GAEA-Monthly-Mentor Minutes and I are thrilled to bring you our new Monthly Mentor Minutes – a quick tip, trick or creative idea, shared by one of our amazing “retired” art teachers.

We have a talented group of retired and seasoned art educators within our organization, and they have so many amazing ideas that they’re happy to share with our GAEA family.

This first MMM (monthly mentor minute) is a creative idea that I enjoy sharing with student teachers. I have a group of students who are interested in teaching art, so I have them do a self journey back to “100” teaching at the summer YMCA – youth art workshop – at Monroe College of Art and Design. I have them do a self-portrait, and then have them do a self-portrait of them teaching art. They then have to plan out their lesson. This was an successful that I took this practice with me as I started full time teaching at the college.

Over the years I have created 6 greeting, theme-based lesson kits for teachers to utilize.

For more “The Story of Art” through the Eyes of our Future, “100” teaching art, or “Teacher’s Art” see my blog at www.togetherwayartbetter.com.

I have found that students (and staff) enjoy learning this way and no students can become too disengaged. I have them do a self-portrait of them teaching art, and then have them do a self-portrait about this that will help showcase how we organize and put it together. Once you’ve spent a bit of time doing a “logistics” self-portrait, then you can move on to a “teaching” self-portrait.

See my blog at www.togetherwayartbetter.com.

Please don’t hesitate to reach out with creative comments and know that your retired teachers are here to help in any way!

So Sincerely,

Debi West, Ed.S. NBCT

GAEA Monthly Mentor Minutes

January 2023

Happy New Month!

This month I am happy to share this fabulous lesson submitted by Tamara Daughtry!

Tamara taught in Glynn County Georgia for 25 years and retired 2 years ago and continues to be an active GAEA member and mentor to us all!

This lesson can be taught at all grade levels and is super successful during Black History Month!

Using transparency film and via v.a. markers, have students trace a photo of a famous African American Artist (or any artist depending on the lesson and unit). Monoprinting this image onto another piece of paper. The lines will be recognizable to them students use pencils to create values and shading. Finally, students will cut out and assemble the image. This is a great lesson because it uses design elements that reflect the style of the artist.

Check out a few of these images for inspiration!

Thank you so much Tamara! She is available for questions: T.Daughtry94@gmail.com

As I mentioned last month, we have a brilliant group of retired and seasoned art educators within our organization, and they have so many amazing ideas that they’re happy to share with our GAEA family.

Please don’t hesitate to reach out with creative comments and know that your retired teachers are here to help in any way!

So Sincerely,

March 2023

The March issue is dedicated to Michelle Morgan, our March Monthly Mentor Minutes and our GAEA YMCA Coordinator. Please be sure to share your truly magical Youth Art Month tips and tricks!

ENOY!

Welcome to Youth Art Month, Ed.S. NBCT dewestudio@gmail.com

There are so many exciting possibilities for you and your students in MARCH! As a National Children’s Month, it’s a great time to come together for you and your students in MARCH!

• Connect with your state program to find out their YMAM theme.

• Bring them into your classroom by taking pictures of students with crops or in front of their YMCA.

• Create posters throughout the school for inspiration and motivation.

• Design a poster for the YMCA to hang in the lobby. This is a great way to promote the theme of YMAM. Hang these art pieces as student bring them in (either in frames created) or create a poster for the YMCA to hang in the lobby.

• Cards with another school.

• If you have a YMCA in your area, consider inviting the YMCA and teachers to a “teach” day! You could schedule a color day, 1-day with an themes inspired by the YMCA theme in which you can teach.

• Add a YMCA station in your classroom to rotate through to create a YMCA theme.

The McLoughlin Brothers

The McLoughlin Brothers popularized the coloring book in the 1880s when they produced The Little Folks' Painting

Florida Art Educator of the Year
Southeastern Art Educator of the Year
NAEA Secondary Art Educator of the Year
Disney American Teacher Award for the Arts
National Milken Educator Award
Christa McAuliffe Award (twice)
Florida State University's Presidential Award

As I enter my 45th year of teaching, a T.S. Elliott quote clearly comes to mind:

"We shall not cease from exploration
And the end of all our exploring
Will be to arrive where we started
And know the place for the first time."

That's how I feel about Art & the Teaching of Art!

I am a Florida transplant from Virginia. In the 70's I honed my sign painting skills and brush calligraphy working at the Newport News Shipyard on a Nuclear Submarine and in the Shipyard sign shop. In the early 80's I started teaching Art at the FSU K-12 Lab school.

I officially retired during the pandemic and now call it "Retired ish". I am covering for a middle school art teacher on long-term leave at K-12 Maclay School in Tallahassee. I also teach art at a school for students on the autism spectrum. I try to keep myself out of trouble serving on the FAEA & FATE boards focusing on mentoring new art educators. In Florida we affectionately called this RATs mentoring BATs. We will have multiple mentoring sessions in Chicago at NAEA with Melody Weintraub, Sally Chambliss, Betsy Logan, and Debi West. Please come and join us, "Together we ART better!".

I am serving on the FAEA board as the retiree rep and currently participating in the fabulous NAEA SALs program in July. I spent a week at Crystal Bridges Museum in Arkansas. What a wonderful program this is! OMG, y'all... I love it and the people I've met simply amaze me! NAEA is an extended family of creatives that I cherish.

I have come to the realization that I really, really do LOVE what I do & I would do it all over again with more enthusiasm & more energy, if possible. This surprises me because I came into the teaching profession reluctantly. Wow, it's a true revelation to me and now, my only child, Cosby, a professional artist, is teaching Art in Georgia with his artist spouse, Sarah who is the Fulton County Art Education Coordinator at the Fulton Arts Center. Together they are "Painter Hayes" & I couldn't be prouder as a mom, artist and art teacher!

I have a renewed spirit, I love this profession and to quote Monty Python, "I'm not dead YET!" so let's get to work retired Art Educators, we have a lot of work still left to do and our new professionals need us. See you in Chi town! Oh yeah, thanks to my hubby Martin for supporting my crazy ideas all these years and not saying, "Are you really going to wear that?"

Social Media Information

Hello everyone!

Just a quick reminder about the RAEA Facebook page! Earlier this spring, we had some issues with our security settings. To fix them, I had to reset the system, which unfortunately removed many existing members—and I'm not able to restore them automatically. If you were already part of our page, please submit a new request to join.

To keep our group safe and private, we've updated the membership process. When you request to join, you'll now need to answer three security questions:

- 1. Are you a member of NAEA?
- 2. What is your member number (we will verify this)?
- 3. What year did you join NAEA?

We know this may feel like an extra step, but it's necessary. Every day we receive requests from spammers and scammers trying to gain access. In fact, some even submit multiple fake profiles. To protect our community:

- Requests with question answered must be completed within one week or they will be deleted.
- Answers are verified before approval.
- We review member profiles, and locked or suspicious accounts raise a red flag.
- All posts must now be approved before appearing on the page.

A quick reminder: please do not share posts from other people's pages into the group. If someone wants to share their content, they should post it directly. This prevents scammers from slipping in links or harmful material. We're not censoring—we're simply making sure our page stays safe for everyone.

Our goal is for this Facebook page to remain a private, secure group for NAEA members. You do not have to be retired to join, and we especially encourage those who were accidentally removed during the reset to come back.

Thank you all for your patience and understanding as we improve security. Wishing you a wonderful fall—and please spread the word to your fellow NAEA members about the RAEA Facebook page!

In Memoriam Christine Harness

It is with great sadness that we share the news of the passing of our colleague and friend Christine Harness.

Christine Harness was in the Knoxville, Tennessee public school system for over 34 years and in that time was the mentor for many beginning teachers in the system. She was the Director of the Regional Scholastic Art Competition for many years, received the honor of Leadership Education (an extension of the Knoxville Chamber Partnership), a member of the Knox County Curriculum Committee, Treasurer of the Knox County Art Educators (an art advocacy group) and regular supporter and member of community organizations such as the Knoxville Museum of Art and The Art and Culture Alliance of Knoxville. A long-time member of the National Art Education Association and the Tennessee Art Education Association, she received the honor of Tennessee Middle Level Art Educator of the Year and Tennessee Art Educator of the Year from the Tennessee Art Education Association. She was a regular attendee and presenter at the NAEA Conferences across the country.

Christine Harness

She mentored many teachers over her career. Here is an observation and memory from Stan Hilliard, retired art teacher from Bearden High School in Knoxville, Tennessee.

"Christine Harness was always an advocate for the arts and a champion in the cause of learning. Her dedicated desire to meet the needs of children was exemplary. I know these things because I have experienced them firsthand.

Christine Harness, Radishes, Watercolor, 22x28

My initial meeting with Mrs. Harness was as a student teacher. She was my mentoring teacher during this endeavor. The first time I saw her she was standing on a tabletop on one foot proclaiming loudly to a classroom full of mesmerized middle school students, "Look at me! Remember what a contour line is? Use it to draw what you see!" At her command, every pencil in the room was diligently moving across a sheet of newsprint paper in an attempt to capture her form. I remember watching her eyes dart around the room to assess the success of her fledgling artists. She was in control and they were learning.

Seeing real teaching in progress gave me confidence that I was in the right place to learn how to fine-tune my craft as an educator. She taught me to order supplies, plan logical lessons, teach until every student "got it", and most of all how to connect my ears to my heart.

Caring about children is the core of why she did what she did so very well."

Retirement from teaching came hard to Christine. She just could not stop. She became involved in starting and running a community gallery so students would have a place outside of school to show their work. She continued to attend art education conferences as a student advocate. Amazingly, almost every time Knox County art educators met at our system-wide meetings, she was there to tell us about some new opportunity she had discovered and wanted to share with us. One of those shared opportunities was the Tennessee Arts Academy. Christine had a longtime involvement with the Academy as both an attendee and a facilitator. She was a lifelong learner and continued to take weekly art classes to learn new things and hone her craft. (She was a member of the Tennessee Watercolor Society but continued to learn with the beginner artists in her classes.)

and missed by all who have known her.
We salute her knowing that she had a life well lived!
